

Dh! sing again
that simple song

G. M. Garrett
(1834-1897)

George Mursell Garrett (1834-1897) was born in Winchester, Hampshire, England. His father was the master of the choristers at Winchester Cathedral. He became a chorister of New College, Oxford, and studied organ under Stephen Elvey. He later served as assistant to Samuel Sebastian Wesley at Winchester. He earned his music degrees at Cambridge and was a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists (FRCO). He was organist at Madras Cathedral; John's College, Cambridge; and organist to the University. He was appointed the Director of Music at St. John's College, Cambridge in 1857 and held the position for forty years. He taught harmony and counterpoint and was Examiner in Music for the University. He was also examiner for the Irish Intermediate Education Board and other institutions. He was conductor of the St. John's College Musical Society and appeared as piano soloist. He composed an oratorio, several cantatas, organ music, songs, part-songs, and music for the Anglican Church in the form of service settings, chant, and anthems.

Oh! sing again that simple song
We used to love so long ago;
Ere Fortune's spite, the cold world's wrong,
Had taught us all that now we know.
Ay, breathe once more that touching strain,
So sweet to spirits tempest-tost;
For still to me its sad refrain
Seems sweetest when it pains me most.

Though Fortune frown, and friends look cold,
And lowier hopes and aims are ours;
And visions bright as those of old
No more may cheer our lonely hours;
Yet, let us 'drive dull care away,'
Unheeding Fortune's sharpest slings,*
Today, today, at least, be gay,
Whate'er tomorrow brings!

* 'The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.' —SHAKESPEARE

George Louis Palmella Busson du Maurier (1834-1896)
