

Part-song from the opera "Jessy Lea"

At First
the Mountain Rill

George A. Macfarren
(1813-1887)

Sir George Alexander Macfarren (1813-1887) was born in London. From early youth, he suffered from poor health and weak eyesight. His eyesight continually deteriorated until he became totally blind in 1860. However, his blindness had little effect on his productivity. Macfarren began to study music when he was fourteen and, at sixteen, entered the Royal Academy of Music. Because of his eyesight, he abandoned performance and concentrated on composition. He later taught at the Academy, eventually becoming a principal. He was also appointed professor of music at Cambridge University in 1875. He was conductor at Covent Garden, London; founder the Handel Society; program note writer for the Philharmonic Society; and edited the works of Handel and Purcell. He wrote 18 operas, 13 oratorios and cantatas, 9 symphonies, and 162 songs. He was active as writer of part-songs, literature for the many amateur choirs appearing throughout the country. He was knighted in 1883 on the same day as Arthur Sullivan and George Grove. His brother Walter Macfarren (1826-1905) was a pianist, composer and professor of the Royal Academy.

At first the mountain rill is weak,
And from its prison scarce can break;
Then each pebble on its way
Seems enough its course to stay.
Spreading as it glides along,
Soon it is a torrent strong;
And its path is broad and free,
As it bounds into the sea,
And its path is broad and free,
As it bounds into the sea.
At first the mountain rill is weak,
But spreading as it glides along,
A torrent strong, its path is broad and free,
As it bounds, bounds into the sea.

Thus love is oft so weak at first,
That e'en the heart in which 'tis nursed
Scarcely can its presence feel;
But its power will soon reveal;
And so mighty is its force,
Nothing can restrain its course.
Riches, honours, what are they?
Love through all will find a way.
Thus love is oft so weak at first,
But soon it will its power reveal, so mighty,
Nothing can restrain its course,
Love through all will find a way.

John Oxenford (1812-1877)

TERMS OF USE

These editions are available as a service to the choral community, offering inexpensive access to public domain literature. Choir resources can purchase other literature still under copyright, especially to support those creating and publishing new compositions and arrangements. These editions have been created using public domain sources under U. S. copyright law. Out of respect to the research, time and effort invested:

- please print and issue an edition in its entirety, retaining notices, attributions, and logos.
- please do not consider this edition a source for creating another edition.

If performed, sending a copy of the concert program would be a valuable affirmation. If recorded, notification and attribution would be appropriate professional courtesies and a copy of the recording would be greatly appreciated!
