W. A. Ogden
(1841-1897)

William Augustine Ogden (1841-1897) was born in Franklin County, Ohio. At age 8, his family moved to Indiana. He was educated in Indiana district schools and studied music at the community singing schools. During the Civil War, he enlisted in the 30th Indiana Volunteer Infantry where he organized a male voice choir. The choir became well known in the Army of the Cumberland. After the war, he studied music under Lowell Mason, Thomas Hastings, E. E. Bailey, and B. F. Baker. He gained great distinction as teacher and convention conductor. He taught music in many states and in Canada and held positions as principal of the normal school in Greensburg, Pennsylvania; Director of Music at the Iowa Normal School; and Superintendent of music of the public schools in Toledo, Ohio. In 1894, he trained 3,000 children for the great Saengerfest held in Toledo. He published a number of volumes of sacred choral music and contributed to other collections of choral music. He composed two oratorios, two cantatas, two comic operas and many gospel songs.

In the early autumn
While the summer green
Lingers in the forest,
On the hills is seen,
Sings a little insect,
'Mong the leafage hid,
And to every question answers,
Katy, Katy did.

Katy did,
Katy didn't,
Katy did,
Katy didn't,
Oh, we know that Katy did!
Oh, we know that Katy didn't!
What you say is true!
What you say is not true!

Oh, you boasting Katy!
Hiding in the wood,
All the night-time fibbing
To the solitude,
Who that hears believes you,
Yet who would forbid
Your untiring protest saying,
Katy, Katy did.

If you would but show us
What you hide so well,
If the tiny secret
You would only tell,
What she did so wondrous
How the deed was hid,
All the world would listen to what—
Katy, Katy did.

If the deed doth shame you,
Why not keep it still,
You do not confess it,
Tattle as you will,
Evermore the secret,
Is securely hid,
And no living mortal knows what—
Katy, Katy did.
