Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie (1847-1935) was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, to a musical family. Mackenzie's talent emerged early: at the age of eight he was playing nightly in his father's orchestra. He was sent for his musical education to Germany, and, in 1862, he successfully applied for admission to the Royal Academy of Music in London. Shortly after starting at the Academy, he was awarded a King's Scholarship, the income from which Mackenzie augmented by playing in theatre and music hall pit-bands, as well as in classical concerts.

In 1865 Mackenzie returned to Edinburgh, teaching privately and in local colleges. In 1873 he took on the conductorship of the Scottish Vocal Association. Mackenzie's heavy workload began to undermine his health. Mackenzie began composing full-time, spending much time in the company of Franz Liszt. In early 1888 Mackenzie was appointed as the principal of the Royal Academy of Music. He held the post for 36 years until his retirement in 1924. Together with Hubert Parry and Charles Villiers Stanford, he was regarded as one of the fathers of the British musical renaissance in the late nineteenth century.

God sent his singers upon earth
With songs of sadness and of mirth,
That they might touch the hearts of men,
And bring them back to heaven again.

The first, a youth, with soul of fire,
Held in his hand a golden lyre;
Through groves he wandered, and by streams,
Playing the music of our dreams.

The second, with a bearded face,
Stood singing in the market-place,
And stirred with accents deep and loud
The hearts of all the listening crowd.

A grey old man, the third and last,
Sang in cathedrals dim and vast,
While the majestic organ rolled
Cottrition from its mouths of gold.

For those who heard the singers three,
Disputed which the best might be;
For still their music seemed to start
Discordant echoes in each heart.

But the great Master said,
“I see no best in kind, but in degree;
I gave a various gift to each,
To charm, to strengthen, and to teach.

“These are the three great chords of might,
And he whose ear is tuned aright
Will hear no discord in the three,
But the most perfect harmony.”

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-1882)
